Discussions with Prof. Robertson regarding AJ 101 and AJ 278 (Cancelled)

Tue, February 5, 2019 7:55 AM

Hi Prof. Robertson,

I will be conducting the library instruction sessions next week for your AJ 100 (Tuesday, 2/12 at 9:00am) and AJ 278 (Thursday, 2/14 at 9:00am) classes.

When I have taught AJ 100 in past semesters, the focus was on having students learn about different library and internet resources available for finding a future job. Would you like for this to be the focus for our session coming up this Tuesday as well?

This will be my first time providing library instruction for AJ 278. What would you like for your students to learn about during our session on the 14th? Since this will be my first time providing instruction for AJ 278, please send me any documentation you might have for this course when you have a chance. Documents such as a syllabus and library-related assignments are particularly helpful.

Thank you Prof. Robertson. I look forward to meeting with your classes next week!

Thanks,

Tim Ream

Hi Tim,

Thank you for reaching out and looking forward to seeing you next week. The AJ 100 session will be perfect to repeat your last instructional class.

I had to rearrange my schedule and will have to cancel the Thursday, Feb. 14th class with you. I will contact Jill and take it off of the master schedule.

Thank you once again and see you on Tuesday,
Kelly

Hi Prof. Robertson,

Thanks for bringing your class in today. I thought the session went well.

I just checked with my colleague Jill, and she mentioned that the AJ 278 library session was still scheduled for this coming Thursday.

I wanted to verify with you whether or not we are meeting on Thursday for AJ278 at 9:00am

Thanks,

Tim Ream
