Hi Tim,

Jill informed me that you'll be doing one of these sessions for me. Here are the files you need!

Thanks so much,

Stephanie

Hi Prof. Piazza,

Happy Fall Semester! Thank you for sending over the assignment prompt and related essay. I will let you know what questions I have as we get closer to the instruction date.

One point I did want to mention is that I have been using an instructional style lately where students and I go through the research process (finding background information, locating more specific articles, and citing/saving the research) together, as opposed to me researching their specific paper topics in front of the classroom. This process takes around 1 hour, and then the students have 1 hour to look for specific information on their topics (while I walk around and help them). Would this type of model work for your class?

Thanks,

Tim Ream

Hi Tim,

Yes, that sounds great!

Thank you,

Stephanie

Good to here Prof. Piazza. I will send you updates regarding the instruction as I plan for it.

I can't wait to see your class on the 17th. I always enjoy providing instruction to your students!

Thanks,

Tim Ream

Good afternoon Tim,

Thank you so much for instructing my students yesterday. I know they learned a lot from your presentation and we all appreciate you and your effort.

I'm so sorry that the equipment was giving you such a hard time, but you bounced back from the obstacle quickly! I would have been so stressed out!

Looking forward to next time,

Stephanie

Hi Prof. Piazza,

Thanks for your kind words here. I was kind of worried that the technical malfunctions negatively impacted the entire class and the students might not have gotten much out of it. But it sounds like I was able to recover at least well enough for the students to gain a basic understanding of the research process (and get some practice).

Below is the link to the research guide for your English 100 students. If there are resources that I can add to the guide below, just let me know and I can do so:
